Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from On the Curative Effects of the Abstraction of Blood: With Rules for Employing Both Local and General Blood-Letting in the Treatment of Diseases This observation applies in a particular manner to those diseases for which medicine possesses what is called a specific remedy. In treating these diseases, much depends on the state of general health in the individual before such specific medicines are administered. From want of such care, how often do we hear of the different preparations of mercury, bark, and iron, disagreeing with particular patients? In almost every instance this will be found to arise from some part of the alimentary canal being in a deranged state, which state ought to have been corrected previous to administering the specific remedy. The most useful medicines often fall into disrepute from want of such attention, whilst under other circumstances the dose must be changed, as well as the form of administering it. I do not mean to affirm that there are no individuals with whom particular medicines disagree. On the contrary, there are persons in...
